VIOLATED TRAFFIC REGULATIONS TO GET POPCORN

Chauffeur Thought Fare's
Wishes Paramount to Crossing
Rules; Mistake Costs
 Him $5 in City Court.

For violation of the traffic regulations at Second street and Central avenue, J. H. Ringwood, a chauffeur, was fined $5 in the city court this morning. He was arrested last evening by Traffic Policeman Horace Ringwood, drove diagonally across the street. The police say he knew he was violating regulations by cutting across traffic with no lay crossing and his excuse was that his fare wanted to buy popcorn and he wished to get to the popcorn wagon on the corner with commendable dispatch. The hearing did not bring out whether the fares got their popcorn.

Bell of Deceased Members:

An innovation introduced at last night's dinner was the reading by the secretary of the roll of deceased members. It was read by Secretary Gates while the members and guests stood and recited a lengthly list of names many of them of state and even national distinction. The names in some cases probably will be continued at future annual gatherings of the organization.

President Carr introduced as the first and principal speaker Captain W. C. Boyd, New Mexico solicitor for the Santa Fe, whose notable address is given in full in today's Herald.

Captain Boyd was heard with close attention and was frequently interrupted by applause as he brought out striking features of the present development of the state and their influence upon the future of Albuquerque.

DR. BOYD RINGS THE BELL.

Captain Boyd was followed by President David R. Boyd of the University, who took up the thread where the preceding speaker left it with regard to the usefulness of the state university in the development work of the state. Dr. Boyd pointed out that the University already is doing much of the work outlined as necessary by Captain Boyd in finding out the facts about the resources of the state and their availability, and he confirmed showing that the University was doing the most important work in this regard by training young men

BUSINESS MEN OF ALBUQUERQUE IN NOTABLE DINNER GATHERING AT TRADE CLUB

Development Just Ahead.

UNITED EFFORT MAIN NEED OF ALBUQUERQUE

Two Hundred and Twenty-six Men Listen for Four Hours to Recital of Things to Be Done and How to Do Them.

PATIENCE is not a dominating characteristic of the Albuquerque man. He wants action and wants it quick. He likes his meetings short and when he is found sitting for more than an hour in any assemblage without visible signs of impatience or a desire to get home or back to business, it is convincing evidence that he is deeply interested.

Two hundred and twenty-six Albuquerque business men—counting for four hours and a half in the commercial club last night at the twenty-fifth anniversary dinner of the club and listened to fifteen speeches, varying in length from forty-five minutes to a minute and a half, interspersed with an attention that was complete and absorbed and that showed the most intense interest that has ever been shown in the proceedings of a gathering of this kind in this city. Between the speeches the gathering adjourned in singing rounds Albuquerque songs to ringing accompaniments by a first-class orchestra and behind the piano direction of Rev. E. P. Shuler, who not only led the singing but wrote them.

The popular song of the three composed for the occasion by Mr. Schneider was to the effect that Albuquerque should have a trade club twice five hundred strong, and that this city should have 30,000 people in 1920. This latter, in fact, became the theme of the meeting and shows that the sheep industry is worthy of the most cordial support from business interests in New Mexico. Mr. Hundt cited several minutes to a minute and a half, interspersed with facts which are worth the most careful thought from business interests here. To show that the sheep industry and every man in it is worthy of the most cordial support from business interests in New Mexico, Mr. Hundt cited several minutes to a minute and a half, interspersed with facts which are worth the most careful thought from business interests here. To show that the sheep industry and every man in it is worthy of the most cordial support from business interests in New Mexico, Mr. Hundt cited several minutes to a minute and a half, interspersed with facts which are worth the most careful thought from business interests here.

The speakers at the meeting were approximately 1,000 men engaged in the business of growing sheep in New Mexico. Mr. Hundt said, brought in less than ten minutes at this dinner Frank A. Hubbard told the men assembled more about the sheep industry of New Mexico than ninety per cent of them ever knew before. The most interesting part of the meeting was the discussion of the sheep industry in New Mexico, and that means a permanent place in the records of the organization.

The lamb sale out of this state, he said, brought into New Mexico 16,000,000 in cash last year. The wool sold brought in $6,000,000 more. Both these huge totals he said, would be increased this year because of larger output and higher prices.

They are approximately 1,000 men engaged in the business of growing sheep in New Mexico. Mr. Hundt said, who now employ at all times around 18,000 men. In the three spring months and during the lambing season, he said, the number of employees was 30,000. Thus he showed that the sheep industry distributes wealth production more nearly evenly among all classes of the people than any other industry we have, and as a result is our most valuable industry.

The money, he said, goes to those who spend it at once, thus keeping the new million strength into the state in active circulation.

There is no chance for loss in buying the sheep industry, Mr. Hundt declared, and his strength has been drawn down to a place where application with the assertion that within ten years there will be enormous lamb sales every year in the Rio Grande valley between Pena Blanca to the north and Velarde to the south of Albuquerque, and that these 100,000 lambs will be worth $7 each to the feeders.

In addition to these millions which he showed would be turned loose in this community there would be the value of the fertilizer, the ranch equipment, the stock and the feed crops grown and he showed conclusively that this was not an ocean picture, but an actual hard-hitting forecast of events to come at hand.

On the prediction without chance of contradiction, because I know, concluded Mr. Hundt, "that within five years from this date there will be 200,000 lambs on feed in lots in the valley extending to Albuquerque and not less than 60,000 head of cattle being fattened for market here."

It. L. D. McAllister, who spoke for the city, expressed briefly appreciation for the nice things that had been said and added the Albuquerque newspaper, but brought out the fact that while the newspapers are anxious to have local worthy enterprise and do a fact, lack them all that there is a disposition on the part of many to not see a good strong pressure of extorting meekness and thereafter neglect the need of strong to carry about where it has no driving power whatever. It appeared for a strong capacity that could be kept at high pressure all the time especially in the organization of the Commercial club.

Senator Isaac Barth, the next speaker, addressed the meeting with a speech which reflected the general tone of which was good and which helped materially to tighten up an evening of most serious discussion.

Nestor Montoya, editor of La Unidad, made a hit and was loud applause when he declared that the Indians had been wiped out in New Mexico. "I say, 'Death to America,'" he said. In a speech on the progress of winning incorporation of the small people of McKinley county for the development activity, "because we have wiped out the Indians in New Mexico. We are all American citizens in the sense of the title."

Bernard Wants Fire Agent.

J. B. Herndon, president of the State National bank, also scored a hit when he volunteered to back his appeal for a county agricultural agent with a personal contribution of $100 a year for two years toward the salary of such an official. President Cary told him that his offer probably would be accepted, as the fifth anniversary of the organization of the Commercial club.

DR. BOYD RINGS THE BELL.

Captain Boyd was followed by President David R. Boyd of the University, who took up the thread where the preceding speaker left it with regard to the usefulness of the state university in the development work of the state. Dr. Boyd pointed out that the University already is doing much of the work outlined as necessary by Captain Boyd in finding out the facts about the resources of the state and their availability, and he confirmed showing that the University was doing the most important work in this regard by training young men and young women to do the exacting work required, in all of its phases. Success, Dr. Boyd said, was never an accident. Always there was work and intelligent effort behind it, and always there was trained brain power at work to produce a worth while result.

Leading from this, he pointed out the importance of the University to the state and as an asset for Albuquerque and concluded with a compelling demand for support for the University and backing for its every activity. His address was concluded amid what may be truthfully described as a storm of applause.

R. W. Wiley, the next speaker, dwelt at length on the necessity for membership for the club and the further need of freeing the club of debt. Mr. Wiley made a little more than his usual mark, logical speech. He hit the mark with every sentence and concluded with a demand that every man present pledge himself to produce one new member for the club on or before January 1, 1916.

Pays Tribute to Newspapers.

A. B. McMullen, who spoke on the cattle industry of New Mexico, introduced his remarks with a tribute to the Albuquerque newspapers, emphasizing remarks which had been made by previous speakers. He declared the Albuquerque newspapers excellent in news service and editorial policy and pronounced them worthy of the most cordial support from city and state. Mr. McMullen in a few words painted an interesting picture of the cattle industry. Its gain in importance and prosperity and its vital importance to this city. He dwelt upon the necessity for adequate preparation for the coming livestock men's convention here, indicating a belief that the people of Albuquerque do not yet realize the largeness of the gathering or its importance to the city now and in the future.

Albuquerque, he concluded, might easily be made a cattlemen's city, a stock trading center for a vast range area and one of the important dealing markets of the nation. The effort, he thought, should be begun with adequate preparation for the coming stockmen's convention.

One Amazing Sheep Industry.

In a talk of less than ten minutes at this dinner Frank A. Hubbard cited the men assembled more about the sheep industry of New Mexico than ninety per cent of them ever knew before. The facts which are worth the most careful thought from business interests here.

Saint Recites Early History.

One of the most interesting of the long list of addresses was that by Col. J. E. Saint, who was the first president of the Commercial club, one of its organizers and for many years one of the leading vertebrates in the organization. Mr. Saint read a brief statement
